£60-90

B&W circular polariser
£60-£90
If you only ever buy one filter, make it a polariser. The effect it can have on the colour saturation is dramatic and it can't be replicated on a PC. B&W is the Rolls Royce of filters, so if you're only getting the one filter you can afford to spoil yourself!

£50

Ilford Galerie inkjet paper
from £10
Your masterpieces deserve to be printed on the finest paper, and Galerie is one of the best. It comes in three flavours - Gold, Classic and Smooth - with various options. Try Galerie Gold Fibre Silk, which has a baryta (barium sulphate) layer for rich, long-lasting results.

£50

HP Photosmart 335 printer
£50
If you're looking for a small portable printer that will give you 6 x 4in prints in a minute, direct from your media card, camera or phone, look no further than this tiny offering from HP. With an optional car adaptor or battery pack you can even take it with you on your travels to make prints on the go.

£15

Op/Tech neoprene camera strap
£15
If your camera and lens combo weighs heavy around your neck then let one of these stretchy, bungee straps take the strain. Made from the same material as wetsuits, and available in a range of styles, you'd be surprised by the difference they make when lugging your kit around. Visit: www.newprouk.co.uk

£70

Arctic Butterfly sensor cleaning brush
£70
Dust on your sensor? No built-in anti-dust feature? Ran out of Mr Sheen? Sounds like you need a proper cleaning device. This one, from Visible Dust, features a spinning brush to build up a static charge, which attracts the dust.

£50

Lastolite Tri-Grip Reflector
from £50
Every photographer should own a folding reflector. The Tri-Grip's clever design enables it to be held with one hand, and features different covers for different effects. The 30in model folds down to 15ins, while the smaller 18in version collapses to 8ins.
